LAWYERS USE LONG ARGUMENT WITH DOCTORS OVER SPHEROID PELLETS

Blackstones Boot and Bingle, but Are Bundled Into the Ambulance When Defeated 8 to 5 in Ball Game at Washington Park—Nurses, as First Aids, Cheer the Doctors to Victory.

Saw Bones, meaning lawyers, 8 runs. That is the way the game was read at Washington Park after the doctors had finished administering narcotics to the legal lights and had packed them into ambulances to send back to learn the first aid to the injured rules in baseball.

It all happened Monday afternoon. The purpose of the game was twofold. First and foremost it was decided that the receipts of the game should be given to the El Paso High school scholarship fund. The second after effect is to be a banquet at which both the doctors and lawyers will eat, both will probably speak, but only the lawyers will pay the fiddle.

Rooters Rally Doctors. Park Pitman said the lawyers just because they were not used to having so many trained nurses in the grandstand and could not keep their eyes off them. And, the doctor's first aiders rooted loud and long for them while a few spasmodic shouts came from the boys in the grandstand who swore by the lawyers. However, they could not keep up with the noise made by the girls and finally quit yelling.

W. J. Bryan, not the secretary of state, but a lawyer none the less, essayed to hold down the mound for the followers of Blackstones. Pinky Walthall, in a suit several sizes too small for him, gallantly received the spheroid that was delivered into his keeping while he stood behind the bat.

Wolf Knocks Batters from Pill. Wolf, a diminutive chap in a blue sweater of Yale color and Dr. McCann alternated from pitching to catching and did equally well at both. It was Wolf who held the lawyers down to the opening innings and it was he who blasted the doctors out of the pill and won the game for his comrades in the eighth inning.

Stevenson Rolls to First. Wolf faced Bryan first and went out when he knocked a grounder to Pollard at third and the latter threw him out at first. Stevenson, arrayed in a charming football suit and a pair of rainbow stockings, of yellow, red and black and an army shirt to match waddled up to the plate. He took a shot in the left arm and rolled to first base. Then two ambulances drove in through the gate but there was no need for them. McCann, with the pose of Johnny McGraw, looked at Bryan and scared him. He sacrificed Stevenson to second. Klutz bled one over second base and Stevenson sprinted to third in one minute and 59 seconds. Stevens followed with Lawyers Lucky in Seventh. Wolf cut loose with a long hit to center field and would have run home had not Pollard tackled him at third and held him on the bag. He stole home when Stevenson struck out, but kept running to first after Walthall had missed the ball. He died at second a few minutes later when McCann knocked one to Pollard.

Lucky seventh. cried the lawyers, and lucky seventh it proved for them. Larrinola hit one to third which Tappan boosted. He stole second on a passed ball. Kinkel dropped a pop fly back of second. Larrinola went to third and then home on a passed ball. Kinkel going to second. McCann went in to pitch and Wolf went behind the bat. Kinkel scored on Harris's sacrifice to Stevenson. Coldwell walked and stole second. Walthall brought in a run when he sacrificed to Tappan. Bryan tripped to left center, but Pollard fanned.

Lawyers Lose in Eighth. The eighth proved the lawyers' Waterloo. Jamieson fanned but was safe when the third strike went by Walthall. He stole second. Tappan smashed savagely at the air. Clutter sent a safe one between shortstop and third and Jamieson went to third. Bronson went in to bat for Auerbach, made first when Holliday held Jamieson on third. Wolf sent one past shortstop, scoring Jamieson and Clutter. Bronson walked home on a passed ball. Stevenson fanned and McCann went out, Holliday to Coldwell. 3 runs.

Stevenson fanned and McCann went out. Holliday to Coldwell. 3 runs. Then the lawyers were loaded into the ambulance by the doctors. Above the doctors' bench were two buckets of water which bore the warning: "Ginger & Strichling on one and Morphine and Chloroform on the other, while a large horse syringe was laid along to be used for treatment of this nature."

Adkinson umpired strikes and balls and McCabe held the field.

Cardinal Batters Need An Optician

Weak Sticking of Kenethy and Evans Is Handicap to St. Louis Nationals. By W. J. O'CONNOR.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 22.—An optician would do the Cardinal players a heap of good at this stage of the National league scramble. Manager Huggins' men are suffering from bad eyesight brought on by lack of practice. Unless they can clarify their vision by long batting sessions during their brief stay at home, they will be at a disadvantage when they hit the road for a 12-day trip.

Huggins is particularly eager to have Koney and Evans hit their stride, as the weak sticking of this pair has been a big handicap so far. Koney hit into a double play killing a promising-looking rally.

The Cardinals looked bad in their inaugural game at home, simply because they couldn't hit. The Cubs, on the other hand, stacked up like pennant winners behind the great curving of Larry Cheney. However, Evans' men threw a defense as tight as a kettle drum around Cheney and it was hard to puncture it for safe knocks, but it was the old story of a team shaping itself around pitching.

Griner Not at His Best. Don Griner proved a keen disappointment to many of the fans denying the fact that Griner was his best. With a tighter defense he would have escaped with only four runs being scored. And a pitcher who holds the Cubs to BANTAMWEIGHT champion Johnny Coulton, who has not fought since his 19-round bout with Kid Williams, in New York, several months ago, is ready to fight again. Coulton has signed articles for a 10-round bout with Tommy Hudson, the western bantam at Windsor, Canada, on April 30.

Frankie Whitney, the fighting carpenter of St. Joseph, Mo., and Jack Redmond, of Milwaukee, will meet in a 10-round bout before the Pueblo Athletic club on April 23. Eddie Johnson, who was booked to meet Redmond, was dropped from the card because the promoters immediately got in communication with Whitney. Whitney has accepted an offer to meet Bobby the Fort Worth scrapper, in St. Joseph on May 2.

Ty Cobb has wired an automobile supply company at Logansport, Indiana, that he will talk business if its offer of $15,000 per year salary is still open.

Matty McCue, who has beaten several tough featherweights in his career, is a successor to Johnny Ribbons' title by the Chicago fight critics. McCue is reported to be a regular at the Perry McGovern, and the best natural fighter ever seen.

Leach Cross apparently does not want anything to do with Charley White, Chicago's crack 150 pounder. A 10-round bout before the Pueblo Athletic club on April 23. Eddie Johnson, who was booked to meet Redmond, was dropped from the card because the promoters immediately got in communication with Whitney. Whitney has accepted an offer to meet Bobby the Fort Worth scrapper, in St. Joseph on May 2.

Johnny Kilbane, featherweight champion who is working out at Venice, has developed a new punch, delivered with all of his force behind it. The blow is a straight right-hand punch, backed with full force. The managers of both fighters report that both of their boys are nearly down to weight.

Jimmy Walsh, Boston boxer, weighed 95 pounds when he boxed his first bout as an amateur many years ago. Al Dumont and Walsh came out of the same tournament. They have been rivals ever since that time. It was Walsh that taught Sam Langford much of his ring act.

Freddie Welsh is the champion
